Specialist Supported Living Home in St Albans

Welcome to 35-37 Hill End

35-37 Hill End is a 7 bedroom supported living home in St Albans, where adults with autism, mental health and complex needs can build confidence, and live with greater independence in a friendly household.

Set within a quiet residential area of St Albans, 35-37 Hill End is a welcoming 7 bed supported living home with space for both connection and independence.

Each person has their own comfortable bedroom, alongside a spacious lounge, bright dining area and shared kitchen. There's also a cosy cinema room for film nights, while the garden offers space to relax and enjoy time outdoors.

Life here has an easy-going rhythm. People enjoy shared meals, movie nights, trips to local cafés, community events and peaceful walks nearby, with support shaped around individual interests, routines and goals.

Through Strive, our model of support, the team helps people build confidence and independence. Our in-house Positive Behaviour Support expertise helps teams understand behaviour, while trauma-informed approaches bring sensitivity to past experiences. This creates thoughtful, personalised support where people can feel understood, connected and empowered to live life their way.

This is ideal for...

- Someone with autism, mental health or complex needs.
- A person with capacity that values choice and independence.
- A person that enjoys shared meals, film nights & household connection
- Someone who likes community activities & peaceful walks nearby.
- Those that values social opportunities while also enjoying quieter time independently.

Movie Nights At Home!

A cosy cinema room creates space for favourite films, relaxed evenings and shared moments with housemates in the comfort of home.
